

1. AUTHOR

The author desires to remain anonymous. He is a theologian who studied theology for nine years at universities on three continents, taught classical and New Testament Greek at a university and lectured at seminaries and Bible Schools. He is an active worker in God's kingdom and has lived and served over more than fifty years in Asia, the Middle East, Europe and Africa. He taught and trained factory workers, families and especially university students through Bible studies in Christian life and ministry. To date he has published fourteen books anonymously. Translations of these books have been made and are being made in seven major languages; and parts of these books in nine other languages. Over the years he has read many books about Revelation, but in this study he has limited his explanation to the original Greek text and to the books listed below, to which much of his explanation is indebted. The book of Revelation is Christ's revelation and all glory should be his!
